Sacred Connections

Rabbi Gayle Pomerantz

The Jewish People are known as “the People of the Book” because of our great life-long love of learning and stories. In fact, Elie Wiesel said that God created humans because God loves stories. People of the Book also happens to be the name of a great work of historic fiction by Geraldine Brooks, which focuses on the still extant Sarajevo Haggadah, one of the oldest living Jewish illuminated texts. Brooks’ book recently appeared on the My Jewish Learning’s website list of 120 Jewish books, one for every year of life.

As a prodigious reader, I took great pleasure in reviewing the list, seeing how many I’ve read (about half, still plenty of reading to do!) and then reflecting on what would be on my list to share. I was also thrilled to order the books for ages 1 (My First Jewish Baby Book) and 2 (Goodnight Bubbala) for my first grandchild born August 21! The list brought back many memories: Anne Frank, which I read as a child in religious school, Exodus and The Source, which were required reading when I went to High School in Israel, Herschel and the Hanukkah Goblins, with a scary goblin my children used to love, The Red Tent, which opened new doors of women’s spirituality for me and The Jewish Catalog, which I devoured as a young adult. More recently, Sarah Hurwitz’s Here All Along, which I love sharing with those new to Judaism, The Sabbath, by Abraham Joshua Heschel (my copy is worn from so many readings) and Martin Buber’s I and Thou, which is designated for year 120, but I urge you not to wait that long to read it.

As the daughter of an elementary school librarian, I have always loved books. When I was in grade school, I used to help my mother do inventory in the library at the end of the year and open new boxes of books to add to the shelves at the beginning of a school year. I love the weight of a book in my hand, the smell of fresh pages and most of all, the promise of being transported in time and space to another land, another life and another story. Through books we learn about people, history, culture and the language of emotions. Through reading we learn facts and values, and just as importantly, we learn empathy for the other, whose story we now know. With a book (or Kindle, or iPad...) in your hand you are never alone.

While I’m always engaged in expanding my mind through non-fiction, I must confess that my true pleasure is fiction. This summer I discovered a new bonus that comes with reading novels. According to Dr. Richard Restak, a neurologist who provided “Tips to Protect Your Memory” in the New York Times, reading novels boosts memory retention.

Fiction requires you to engage with the text, and work through a story. “You have to remember what the character did on page three by the time you get to page 11,” he said.

After savoring a good book, one of the great joys in life is sharing it with someone you care about. In Ann Patchett’s book of essays I’m now reading, These Precious Days, she says, “As every reader knows, the social contract between you and a book you love is not complete until you can hand that book to someone else and say, ‘Here, you’re going to love this.’”

My gift to you this October is a sampling of some of the books I read this summer that I enjoyed, both fiction and non-fiction:

Amy Bloom In Love: A Memoir of Love and Loss

Atul Gawande: Being Mortal

Amor Towles: The Lincoln Highway

Susan Neiman: Learning From the Germans

Maggie O’Farrell: Hamnet

Geraldine Brooks: Horse

Daniel Sokatch: Can We Talk About Israel?

I would love to hear your recommendations for me when you get a chance (rabbipomerantz@tbsmb.org). In the meantime, check out myjewishlearning.com’s 120 Jewish Books for Every Age, and happy reading!

Innovative School

Margie Zeskind
Head of School

Dear Families,

During this season of renewal, reconnection, restoring, and rebuilding, we are excited about coming together for our TBS Youth Campaign which includes our vision for our playground spaces. I hope you will join our efforts as together we are building for our future!

Our plan is to deepen and further develop our beautiful eco-friendly, natural play space and garden. Our children are benefiting from their opportunities to explore, play, plant, and garden in this natural setting. They love being outdoors and interacting with the natural elements. They are wonderfully curious about everything and when we allow children to love the earth, we are growing stewards of the earth for a lifetime!

We want our garden to be a fertile canvas for developing respectful attitudes about planting and growing. The more children enjoy the wonders and realities of the universe around them, the greater the chance will become for them to protect our natural resources from destruction. In our current space, our children love planting organic vegetable seeds and looking forward to gleaning their harvest. They utilize their seasonal bounty to enhance their healthy school snacks and meals. Through this process, they are developing an awareness of local ecologies, deepening their understandings of where food comes from, and becoming sensitized to the relationship between humanity and the natural world. Within this process, our children can see themselves as a part of the larger world that includes them.

In keeping with Tikkun Olam, our Jewish value of making the world a better place, one of our curricular goals is to support the development of healthy attitudes and approaches towards taking care of our earth. Our garden care is a mindful and organic way for our children to have the opportunity to care for even the tiniest invertebrates living in the soil as well as learning that they are taking care of themselves and others, as they are eating from the garden too.

A gift to our youth campaign can support further development of our natural playground space, giving us the opportunity to continue to connect to the rhythms of the seasons (even here in Miami!) and celebrate our sacred relationship with nature right here at Temple Beth Shalom.

Within our front and back playground areas, we want to developmentally turbocharge and diversify these play landscapes to include sports courts, climbing structures, longer bike paths, climbing walls, and rich and varied creative play and movement areas. Our goal is to instill a love of movement and set the stage for a lifetime of healthy habits. Being physically active has so many health benefits. It reduces obesity risk and improves overall physical, mental, social, and emotional health.

Overall, on all our playgrounds, we want to positively impact our children's sense of wonder to last their whole lifetime! Don't we all wish we had this gift! Your Youth Campaign donation will make the difference!

B'Shalom,

Margie

Barb Shimansky, RJE
Director of School for Living Judaism

I was recently studying with one of our upcoming B'Mitzvah learners, and we were exploring the idea of Sukkot within the context of freedom.

Yes, that is right – freedom. No, I do not have the wrong holiday.

Obviously, Pesach is the festival which is most closely aligned with our celebration of freedom. After all, this is when we gather around a table and retell the story of the Exodus, as the Israelites were led out of slavery and began the trek to the Promised Land.

Sukkot and Pesach are significant benchmarks in our Jewish calendar. They are both one-week long and occur exactly six months apart. Pesach, the festival that commemorates our birth as a people, is celebrated in the spring, while the harvest festival of Sukkot is observed in the fall. Our calendar is constructed precisely so these festivals will happen at these specific times. In this way, Pesach and Sukkot function as bookends to each half-year cycle of our lives. We even change part of our Amidah liturgy at each of these points – one at the start of Pesach and the other at the end of Sukkot.

Bookends can be identical, but they can also be paired as similar but not exact matches – as if they are fraternal twins (something we are well-versed about in my house!). So, while Sukkot might not be specifically about freedom, there are elements of freedom abounding in the festival – if only we know how to see them.

Perhaps the obvious connection is the freedom to be outside in nature, since we spend a significant amount of time during Sukkot connecting with the natural world. I am not sure I love this as a strong connection, though, because we are free to be outside whenever we want – especially here in south Florida!

Many modern rabbis relate this idea of freedom to the holiday that immediately precedes Sukkot – Yom Kippur. It is said that Yom Kippur is the happiest day of the Jewish year, which seems absurd on the surface since we spend an entire day fasting. The idea is that we spend this time focused inward and absolving ourselves of the things we have done wrong over the past year, making a commitment to do better moving forward. By the time Yom Kippur ends, we should feel pure and happy! We then immediately look toward Sukkot; both literally and metaphorically, we move from the inside to the outside – from containment to freedom.

We learn in the Talmud all sorts of rules about building a sukkah, and what constitutes a “kosher” one. Again, this does not seem to immediately conjure up images of freedom. There are so many laws to keep straight! But we should remember that we actually gain freedom by having some boundaries. Being free does not mean that we all get to do whatever we want. Instead, we need guidelines in which to live, which allows us to be free with a comfortable understanding of our expectations as individuals and as community members. There might be rules about building a legal sukkah – but there is also wiggle room, giving us some freedom to create within the lines. And of course, there are so many different ways in which we are free to decorate our sukkot!

Perhaps the most salient connection of Sukkot and freedom derives from the likely origination of another holiday. I noted earlier that Pesach and Sukkot are bookends – week-long festivals that occur six months apart from one another. There is one other festival that lasts for this amount of time – the Festival of Lights. Yes, Chanukah, while not a biblical holiday, is very closely aligned with Sukkot. It is believed that when the Maccabees were fighting in the war, they were not able to stop and observe Sukkot. Once the war ended, realizing they had missed a pretty significant commandment, the Maccabees decided they should essentially make up for it by celebrating Sukkot a couple of months late. Thus, Chanukah was born – a holiday that commemorates the ability for the Jewish people to practice our religion freely. So, when we construct our sukkot in places that are visible to others, we are not only observing the mitzvot of the festival. Much like putting a chanukiyah in the window for all to see, a sukkah is also a way to proclaim that we are Jewish and free to celebrate that. While this is sadly not the case for all Jewish people, for those of us who enjoy freedom of religion, Sukkot is a perfect time to reflect on that and to pray that it becomes reality for our Jewish siblings throughout the world.

Social Justice

Jeff Agron
Social Justice Director

I would like to again wish everyone Shana Tova, a healthy and sweet New Year 5783. Since I started at Temple Beth Shalom on August 1, I have been busy meeting with all of our amazing Social Justice Network volunteers, including everyone chairing a direct service or tzedakah project and our chairs for Mitzvah Day and the Soup Contest. Everyone has been so welcoming. I truly feel at home. We are going to have a great year.

Throughout October and early November, the SJN will be engaged with the Religious Action Center – FL in the Every Voice, Every Vote civic engagement campaign. This campaign is a non-partisan effort, grounded in our Jewish values and commitment to racial justice, to strengthen our democracy by encouraging and protecting voter participation. Voting is how we determine our future. If you would like to be involved, please reach out to Myra Spindel myraspindel@gmail.com. For more information, rac.org/issues/racial-justice/racial-justice-campaign.

It is very exciting to see some of our direct service projects, which were not able to meet during the heights of the pandemic, get back to work. One such project is Mazon, where we provide monthly dinners to homeless residents of Champman Partnership. Mazon meets on the third Monday of every month at 5pm at Chapman. For this month, we will participate on October 17. You must register in advance. If you wish to get involved, please contact me at jagron@tbsmb.org.

Other projects for you to get involved in include Lotus House, Ronald McDonald House, Blessings in a Backpack, Bags of Happiness, Beach Clean-up, and Giving Back to Gibson Park. All of these projects are described in the SJN brochure given out at Yom Kippur and mailed to each household.

Finally, save the date for Mitzvah Day and the Soup Contest, on Sunday, February 26, 2023!

Youth Report

Rabbi Joanne Loiben

New Year, New Look!

BESHTY:

Beth Sholom Temple Youth is our high school youth group for those in grades 9th-12th. The teen board plans monthly events including social activities, trips, and community-service opportunities. It's a fun and engaging way for teens to participate in the Jewish community with their peers!

Madrichol:

Our new and exciting Madrichol program allows teens (grades 9-12) the opportunity to develop leadership and communication skills as they develop programming for Mini and Micro BESHTY (grades K-5). The Madrichol meet monthly to learn leadership skills and to use these skills to create programming for upcoming youth events; and then they implement and staff these programs with our youth. The Madrichol teens form lasting bonds with each other and have a meaningful impact on their students as role models in the community.

*Israel Fellows:

The Teen Israel Fellowship at Temple Beth Sholom is designed for exceptional 11th and 12th graders who have a passion for Israel engagement, education and advocacy. IFellows will gain the tools and resources that foster meaningful discussions about Israel with their peers. The students will learn about the different facets of Israel's society internally, as well the different international affairs and external issues. This fellowship allows the teens to develop crucial leadership and communication skills in a cohort committed to Israel advocacy and engagement. The IFellows will join the Justice League an immersive service trip over Winter Break - Monday, Jan. 2 - Friday, Jan. 6, 2023.

** Justice League:

In alignment with our Temple's mission, the Justice League is a year-long cohort for advanced high school students who want to deepen their Jewish experiences of learning, service and advocacy. The Fellowship meets twice a month: one on-site at TBS, which will be an opportunity for a "deep-dive" into Jewish learning that relates to that month's theme; and one off-site meeting for service and/or learning in the community. The justice league will promote community, enhance Jewish knowledge and strengthen leadership skills. The Justice League will join the IFellows in an immersive service trip over Winter Break - Monday, Jan. 2 - Friday, Jan. 6, 2023.

Please contact rabbiloiben@tbsmb.org for any questions about teen engagement!

*We are grateful to the David M. Dubrow Memorial Fund and Zinn Family Foundation for sponsoring this opportunity.

**We are grateful to the Al & Jane Nahmad Family Foundation for sponsoring this opportunity.

Temple Beth Sholom A RETROSPECTIVE Opening Reception Wednesday, September 14

As we approached our 80th year, we'd been working on archiving and organizing our memories and memorabilia. We partnered with HistoryMiami to curate a collection that would inspire and engage our congregants, while illustrating our storied history. That culminated on Wednesday, September 14, when we welcomed our congregation at the opening reception of A Retrospective: 80 Years of Community.

Thank you to Rabbi Gary Glickstein for his tireless work on this project, Rabbi Gayle Pomerantz, Rabbi Bob Davis, Cantor Segal, and Etan Mark for their support; and to everyone who attended and made the evening a success!

Missed it? The Retrospective may be viewed in the Welcome Center at your convenience.

Temple Beth Shalom is proud to be a Jewish home for all. The Purple Project Committee of Temple Beth Shalom invites you to explore several rabbinic texts that focus on how we frame disagreement and how we find light in the midst of conflict. With the November election just a short time away, perhaps the wisdom of our Jewish Sages will help us to navigate difficult conversations. Please bring an open mind and heart. # Kavanah Council

LIVING MINDFUL JEWISH LIVES
AND HELPING OTHERS DO THE SAME

The Kavanah Council believes:

Judaism is an inherently embodied and mindful religion, and we celebrate it by practicing mindful Jewish skills ourselves and offering instruction and practice opportunities in meditation, contemplative music, study, embodied practices and middot (Jewish character development) to all members of Temple Beth Sholom.

Practicing these skills improves our Jewish and secular lives and integrates the two providing us more authenticity and a deep reservoir of Jewish tools to help us live our lives with more wholeness, ease and equanimity.

We believe in the power of Jewish mindfulness practices to help us realize we have choices/behirot. We practice mindfulness to develop the wisdom/tiferet, the compassion/rachamim and love/chesed to exercise our choices wisely.

See for yourself. Our upcoming offerings include:

HIGH HOLY DAYS:

Yom Kippur Meditation: Cantor Segal, Jani Singer and Marte Singerman of the Kavanah Council will lead a special meditation for Yom Kippur in the Board Room in person and via Zoom. We will enjoy beautiful music, guided meditation and have the opportunity to share about the holiday.

October 5, 2023, from 2:45-3:30 pm in person and via Zoom

Registration tbd.

MINDFUL TUESDAYS:

Weekly Mindfulness Group: Would you like to be part of a community dedicated to improving our lives by increasing our self-awareness, calmness and joy? Join the Kavanah Council's weekly 30 minute Jewish mindfulness group on Tuesdays at 6:30 pm. All levels of experience are welcome.

Tuesdays at 6:30 pm beginning October 11, 2022, via Zoom

SPECIAL TUESDAY SESSIONS

Mindful Healing - a Meditation a Day Keeps the Doctor Away: Dr. Larry Hurwitz, cardiologist and Kavanah Council member, will present a special hour session on how mindfulness and meditation can prevent numerous physical and mental health issues. Larry routinely prescribed meditation for his patients and will include some practices to help us improve our health and discuss some Jewish texts to ground our practice.
